VERDICT IT ROSKO CASE.

Found Guilty of Simple Assault—Case Ended at 5 O'Clock Last Night.

HIS LAWYERS PLEADED.

The Verdict Said to Have Been a Great Surprise as Rosko Had Admitted His Guilt—Prisoner May Escape With a Fine—Said that he Did not Mean to Hurt Majic.

Special to Evening News

New Brunswick, Dec. 5.—The jury in the Andrew Rosko case in which he was charged with manslaughter in having fatally struck Frank Majic, ended at 7 o'clock last night, when the jury found a verdict of simple assault against Rosko. The verdict was a great surprise as Rosko admitted striking Majic and he will probably get off with a fine. His lawyers, C. T. Cowenhoven and Joseph E. Stricker are elated over the finding of the jury.

Andrew Rosko was the only witness for himself outside of Lawyer Joseph E. Stricker. Rosko said he committed the deed, but did not mean to hurt Majic, and did not think of killing him. Lawyer Cowenhoven made a strong plea for him to the jury. Prosecutor Voorhees claimed this was no defense to the suit and wanted the trial to end but the court let it go to the jury. They went out at 5 o'clock.

SOUTH AMBOY TO BE LARGEST COAL SHIPPING PORT ON COAST.

Special to the Evening News.

South Amboy, Dec. 5.—Work is to be started at once to make South Amboy one of the largest coal shipping ports in the world. The most up-to-date machinery and labor-saving devices known will be installed and cars will be unloaded into vessels at the rate of twenty cars per hour. Additional tracks will be laid at South Amboy and the coal shipping will be increased many times. It was said by one of the officials of the Pennsylvania railroad that when the improvements at South Amboy are completed it will mean that coal shipping at at least three other ports will practically cease. What three ports these will be the official would not say.

The plans for these vast improvements at South Amboy have been completed and work will be started at once. When it will be completed, is not known. The principal changes are the manner of handling cars on the end of the docks and the means of unloading them into vessels. The system adopted for the latter is similar to the one now in use on the great lakes which is the only place where the method is used. A huge crane picks the cars up bodily, turns them over, dumping the coal into the vessels, and replaces them on the tracks just as fast as drill engines can supply the cars and get the empty ones out of the way. The apparatus does its own trimming and will do away with many hands.

At the first of the year the South dock passes into the control of the Pennsylvania railroad. This unloading apparatus will be located on the end of one of the docks and all the other docks will be used for storage. A patent machine, which was in use many years ago to load coal from the bins into the cars, which was abandoned, will probably be put in use again, it is said. The plans are on an elaborate scale and when completed South Amboy docks will be completely transformed. Officials of the Pennsylvania visited the shipping ports on the great lakes before adopting the system. Following is a description of the new device as furnished by an official of the Pennsylvania railroad:

"The loaded movement is by gravity from 'A' to 'B,' as in the cut, passing over the scales for loaded cars. From point 'B' the cars are hauled up to the unloading tower 'C' onto a cradle by means of a haulage 'pig.' The cradle is then raised to the proper height, which height can be varied according to the size of the vessel to be loaded, and the cradle and car turned over to an angle to allow of the entire load falling out by gravity into a large dumping pan, from which point it is carried to the vessel through an adjustable spout, which is moveable in all directions to allow of trimming and even loading. The car and cradle are then lowered to their initial position, the car being pushed off the cradle by the succeeding car. It then strikes a down grade, passing over the empty car scales, and after passing a certain point is hauled up a steep incline to 'D' by means of another haulage pig, from which point it goes to the classification yard by gravity. The last movement is governed by the operation on bridge 'E.'"

HAD MAN ARRESTED THEN PAID HIS FINE.

Joseph Repais Arranged Before Recorder Accused of Stealing Bottles of Whiskey.

Joseph Repais was arraigned before Recorder Pickersgill charged with stealing two bottles of whiskey and one of brandy from Ignatz Diabik, Thursday night. Diabik says he was filling bottles with whiskey for Christmas and as he filled he placed them around on the floor. Friday morning he missed three and, as he said, by some detective work he discovered that Repais, who lives over the saloon, had taken them.

Officer Meshrow made the arrest. When searching the man's trunk the officer found a little box which Repais seized and opened showing a generous wad of yellow bucks. He was fined $5. Diabik said the man was to sail for home on the 15th and as he did not want to be severe he decided not to carry the case further. He advanced the money for the fine.

PLAYED JACK THE SLASHER.

Man With a Knife Turned Loose at Fords and Cleaned Out a Saloon.

MANY WERE BADLY CUT

Telephoned to Chief Burke for Assistance—Sent a Constable to the Place and Arrest Was Made—One so Badly Hurt that He Could not Appear This Morning.

John Metro will be sent to New Brunswick today in default of $400 bail. There are two charges of assault. Metro twirled a knife at Fords last night and about a half dozen men were cut more or less seriously. John Salato was injured so he could not appear this morning. Steve Archi and another Hungarian, made charges of assault. Yan Szalaki and George Szalaki were both cut, the one on the head and nose and the other on the wrist. Joseph Fedack, in whose saloon the row occurred, was cut in the hand. Other men were carved in different places by the knife Metro used.

The man appears slightly demented at first refusing to give his name acting strangely.

Metro struck Fords last night. He has a brother there. Metro ordered two drinks. Fedack's was tending bar and when she went to take the ten cents tendered in payment she saw a knife in the man's right hand.

She rushed out of the saloon and told her husband. He came to and he entered Metro's saloon at Fords. The other men, about a dozen in number, who had first backed off to a safe distance, rushed forward and Metro rushed pell mell through the crowd, literally cutting his way. He turned and went through again. Blood flew in all directions. After this he rushed up stairs and Fedack locked the door of the room into which he had gone.

A telephone message was sent to Chief Burke asking assistance. The chief sent Constable J. C. Brown out to arrest the man. Officer Brown took one man and went to the room. The door was opened and the two men seized Metro, and after a hard struggle handcuffed him. Mr. Brown is slightly crippled and Metro is a husky young fellow, but the officer did not hesitate. Metro says the two men who entered complaints had struck him with a chair. The knife is at court. It has a blade four inches long and covered with blood.
